James I. Harrison was born in Mars Hill, a rural community outside of Marion, Alabama. He dropped out of high school to work full time at Wilkerson’s Drug Store, owned by Dr. Author Wilkerson. Dr. Wilkerson encouraged him to get his high school diploma and assisted him financially in going to pharmacy school at Auburn University. With that help and a job waiting tables at a boarding house, he graduated in the Class of 1925.
I am presenting the Auburn University Harrison School of Pharmacy Annual Report for 2013. I know you will find the report interesting. This academic year donor support has been impressive for student scholarships, faculty and facility improvements. We are very grateful to the Auburn Family for their support in our pursuit of excellence.

Twenty-four alumni, friends, corporation and foundations are recognized for reaching Apothecary Society level (donating $10,000 or more), five White Coat Society ($5,000-$9,999), eight Preceptor’s Circle ($3,000-$4,999), 66 Prescription Club ($1,200-$2,999), and 435 Mortar & Pestle Club (up to $1,199). The school’s endowments that support student scholarships, funds for excellence, and professorships are now valued at more than $7 million. Seven hundred-seventy two alumni and friends gave to the Annual Fund via the fiscal year 2013 mail and phonathon campaigns. The Auburn Family appreciates the support from those that have in their hearts to give back.

Faculty have been productive this year with 78 publications in peer reviewed journals and attracting $2.9 million in extramurally funded grant and contracts. Additionally many have received recognitions for their work in instruction, research and leadership. Examples of the honors awarded include Jack DeRuiter, Teacher of the Year; Kimberly Braxton-Lloyd, Alumnus of the Year Award; Forrest Smith, Hargreaves Faculty Mentor Award; and Heather Whitley, Rural Health Heroes Award.

Certainly our student pharmacists provide the joy for all of us, especially those of us who get to watch them mature into wonderful professionals. The almost 600 student pharmacists that are part of this program are grateful to alumni, preceptors, friends, and faculty who contribute in many ways to their education and development.

R. Lee Evans
Dean and Professor
The support of the hundreds of alumni and friends listed in this annual report make it possible for the Harrison School of Pharmacy to provide student scholarships and faculty professorships, improve facilities and equipment, and underwrite faculty and graduate student research. The Office of Development & Alumni Affairs cannot properly express the immense gratitude felt towards these contributors.

Preparing our students to assume various roles in the ever-changing health care industry is dependent on having the proper financial resources. Many of our students carry a financial burden and the debt load they acquire could compromise their future after graduation. The Harrison School of Pharmacy and our student pharmacists rely on the private giving of these alumni and friends to continue maintaining our programs and the quality education our students receive.

The Office of Development & Alumni Affairs exists to offer these alumni and friends the opportunity to give back and connect in a meaningful way to the Harrison School of Pharmacy and Auburn University. Giving back in a way such as an endowed gift provides scholarships in various areas within the school for generations to come. These areas include, but are not limited to, student pharmacists, research projects, and professorships. Other opportunities, such as the Wall of Honor, serve as a lasting way to support the school.

The Harrison School of Pharmacy hosts a number of events such as tailgates and an annual golf tournament as a way to give back to our alumni and friends. We strive to make the Harrison School of Pharmacy and Auburn University a place they feel at home.

Thank you and War Eagle!
