HELPFUL HINTS FOR PARENTS

- The AU Bulletin is available online and contains official information about the university, curriculum, procedures, and academic policies. The Tiger Cub, the student handbook, is a resource about university services and procedures.

- Full time status is considered 12 semester hours for undergraduate students. In some situations, dropping a class puts you below 12 hours and affects scholarships and insurance.

- Know how to calculate a grade point average (GPA). Remember that only Auburn University grades are counted in this calculation. The credits earned elsewhere count toward hours but not the letter grades.

- Anytime a student’s GPA falls below a 2.0, he/she is placed on academic warning. This ‘warning’ comes before academic suspension.

- A freshman on warning after first semester must make a 2.2 the following semester or have at least a 1.5 cumulative GPA or he/she will be suspended from the university.

- If suspended, a student may not enroll at another college or university and transfer the credits earned back to AU. After returning from suspension, the warning continues until the cumulative GPA is above a 2.0.

- The first suspension is for one semester (summer is not included in the time). The second suspension is for two semesters and the third is for an indefinite period of time and known as academic dismissal.

- Any student who is suspended may appeal this to the University Appeals committee if she/he believes that extraordinary circumstances contributed to the suspension.

- AU has a grade adjustment policy (GAP) that allows students to forgive three grades of D or F from their GPA calculation. If the course is required in the major or core, then the course must be retaken at Auburn. This forgiveness policy can be used only three times in the entire time at Auburn. All AU course grades appear on the official transcript, including those grade adjusted. GAPPED grades do not count towards scholarships or entrance into professional schools.
