

Southeastern Ecology and Evolution Conference

11-13 March 2005
The University of Georgia in Athens

First Call for Abstracts

SEEC is a professional meeting intended for graduate students, undergraduate students, and post-docs in the environmental sciences (e.g., ecology, evolution, forestry, limnology, microbial ecology, oceanography, wildlife management, biology, fisheries, marine sciences) to present their research to their colleagues in a comfortable, fun, and low-stress environment.

Abstract submission and early registration will begin in December 2004, and can be completed at <http://www.uga.edu/seec>. Abstracts and registrations will be accepted until 4 February 2005. All registrants will receive a t-shirt and are guaranteed a place on the program for only $15.

Cash awards will be presented to the best oral and poster presentations.

Three plenary lectures will be delivered by UGA faculty members. Speakers include Drs. Whit Gibbons, John Avise and Gary W. Barrett.
