*Primary Resource: Dr. William A. Weary
To: President Jay Gogue
Re: Presidential Assessment
Date: September 9, 2011

The yearly assessment for the Auburn President, according to policies of the Board of Trustees, is based on six topical areas. Trustees have reviewed your self-assessment and unanimously agree that you have excelled in each category, achieving numerous accomplishments and much more. We commend you for another year of outstanding leadership, particularly notable given continued reductions in the university budget, and for your positive standing in the local community and beyond.

Following are our conclusions in the six areas:

1) Summarize performance in addressing previously established goals and objectives

Dr. Gogue was asked to summarize performance in addressing previously established goals and objectives. In his first year, through his leadership, a strategic plan that identified 60 academic and non-academic objectives was developed. In three years, more than half of the goals are completed with remaining goals in various stages of progress. Faculty and staff have taken ownership of the strategic plan and are working together to realize its full implementation.

2) Highlight particularly significant accomplishments during the assessment period

Dr. Gogue was asked to highlight significant accomplishments during the academic year. While there are many, several are particularly noteworthy. First, academic strength for each freshman class has risen the past several years and stands at an all-time high. In fact, the 2010 freshman class surpassed the goal set for 2013. (As of this writing, scores for the 2011 class are not yet available.) Second, the common book program initiated in 2010 continues to generate enthusiasm and a shared academic experience across campus. Third, the university has developed a number of outreach partnerships that work to assist and support under-served schools in surrounding communities. Fourth, President Gogue continues to demonstrate adept leadership in managing reductions in the university budget. As a result, Auburn has not suffered diminished academic quality or elimination of academic programs as other universities have faced.
3) Identify continuing problems the President is facing and recommend how the Board and the President might work together to address these problems

Dr. Gogue identified two major issues. The first relates to the pre-paid college program (PACT). A resolution was reached through the judicial system, and we agree with President Gogue that he and the Board must continue to work together on PACT and other related issues to ensure Auburn’s long-term financial strength. The second relates to implementation and costs of Alabama’s new immigration law. Several parts of the law would prove costly to the university, such as the section on “business transactions.” Among other things, this section could impact passports or birth certificates for students, services provided on campus or extension offices around the State, purchasing cards, summer camp programs and sporting event tickets.

4) Describe three major challenges and three opportunities the university will face in the upcoming year and what roles the president will play in them

Dr. Gogue was asked to name three major challenges for the upcoming year and to talk about the role he will play in addressing those challenges. First, the most pressing challenge continues to be the financial resources Auburn needs to move forward. Curtailing growth in programs and scholarships are two potential options he specified. Second, President Gogue identified the potential for significant changes in composition of the Board. While stating it is ethically inappropriate for him to be involved in Board selections, he hopes the Trustee selection process is conducted in the spirit of Auburn’s best interests. Third, the 2013 regional accreditation reaffirmation is another challenge. Work is underway to address all required standards.

5) Briefly discuss the strengths and overall performance of the senior administrative staff

Dr. Gogue was asked to briefly discuss the strengths and overall performance of senior administrative staff. President Gogue completed annual reviews of those who report to him and, along with the Athletics Director, reviewed each head coach at the end of their respective season. Dr. Mary Ellen Mazey departed Auburn to serve as president of Bowling Green State University. She served Auburn well as provost. For a variety of reasons, one vice president was removed. President Gogue and others are working to ensure that division performs as expected. Two senior administrators, Executive Vice President Don Large and Vice President for Student Affairs Ainsley Carry, continue to perform well in their respective roles. They are described by President Gogue as “star performers.”

6) Provide a brief summary of goals and objectives for the university for the year ahead as well as longer range

Dr. Gogue was asked to provide a brief summary of goals and objectives. First, Auburn will focus its attention on implementation of strategic plan elements yet to be accomplished. In coming years, he expects to see increases in graduation rates, the academic quality metric in which Auburn is weakest. Auburn is now recruiting academically stronger students than in the past, there are new programs to support student learning, and costs have been maintained below Auburn's peer institutions. Second, Auburn will continue working to improve graduate programs. Graduate enrollment increased five percent in the past year, but more progress is needed.

In conclusion, the Board is pleased with your commitment and dedication to the university. Auburn is clearly a stronger institution thanks to your leadership. We are likewise grateful for the way in which you and Susie represent Auburn in any setting. We look forward to working with you in the future to continue moving Auburn forward.

MEMORANDUM TO: Presidential Assessment Group
FROM: Jay Gogue
SUBJECT: Annual Self-Assessment (2010-2011)

Based on Auburn University Board of Trustees policy, there are six areas I should address in my annual self-assessment of my performance. Those areas and my thoughts are outlined below:

1. Summarize performance in addressing previously established goals and objectives.

   During my first year at Auburn, we collectively identified approximately 60 goals or objectives as part of our strategic plan. These goals are mission related and address both academic and non-academic programmatic areas of Auburn and Auburn-Montgomery. Each year in the spring, a diverse group of campus employees, as well a board member, review annual progress. During the past three years, we have fully completed more than half of our goals and we are making progress on the remainder. While I was clearly involved in setting the framework of our strategic plan, the results are the work of our faculty, staff, and administrative employees. I truly believe they have done a remarkable job—the goal is for it to be their plan, not the President’s plan.

2. Highlight particularly significant accomplishments during the 2010-2011 assessment period.

   Attachment 1 provides detailed information for the assessment period. Following are highlights of particular importance:

   - Academic strength of the 2010 freshman class surpassed the goal for 2013;
3. Identify continuing problems the President is facing and recommend how the Board and President might work together to address these problems.

For several years, the Pre-paid college tuition program has been a long-term major concern to us. One of the legislative actions would have cost Auburn about $575 million over the remaining life of the PACT program. In the past few months, the courts have ruled that PACT participants will receive funding equal to 2010 tuition levels for the remaining 20 years of the program; this is something the Board and the administration worked on collectively and is extremely important to our long-term financial strength.

A concern in the coming year will be the new immigration law; not the pros and cons of the law, but its implementation and costs. The section that prohibits “business transactions” is the most troubling portion of the law. Some of the issues that we have identified are:

- Passports or birth certificates for 25,000 students;
- Services for fee on campus and at our 67 extension offices—for example, a fertilizer recommendation for a soil sample involves a fee and is, therefore, a business transaction and requires documentation of citizenship;
- Purchasing cards that are used by employees throughout the state will require an affidavit that no illegal persons are employed at that business;
- Transportation of 4-H and student groups;
- Auburn summer camp programs where a fee is charged; and,
- While far-fetched, some argue that a ticket to a sporting event is a business transaction and, therefore, subject to the documentation requirement.
There are other examples that, if full compliance is expected, will be very costly.

4. Describe three major challenges and three opportunities the University will face in the upcoming year and what role the president will play in addressing them.

The top challenge this year, as in the past, will be financial resources. The economy in the state and nationally will have continued impacts on what we are able to accomplish. It appears the federal budget will be curtailed, and directed appropriations have slowed greatly. Within the state, the tax base is making little progress in terms of real growth. We have to curb our appetite in terms of program growth and scholarships.

A second challenge will again be the potential for significant changes in Board of Trustees composition. I believe Auburn has an excellent Board and massive change is always very disruptive to any institution. Since it is ethically inappropriate for a university president to be involved in Board selections, I will simply hope that our process works and that the spirit of selection is based on what is best for Auburn.

The third challenge is our reaffirmation visit by our regional accreditation body in 2013. Much work is underway and we are hopeful we can address the required standards. There is one issue that requires a Board policy for the removal of Trustees. I have asked our staff to determine what we need to be compliant and to present it for your thoughts and discussion.

5. Briefly discuss the strengths and overall performance of the Senior Administrative staff.

All annual reviews of those who report to me have been completed and I would be happy to share my assessment of each of them with you. In addition, I, along with the Athletics Director, review each head coach at the end of their season of competition. In general, we have an excellent senior staff. This past year, Dr. Mary Ellen Mazey accepted a presidential position and she will be missed—her reviews were excellent and she was a pleasure to work with. One Vice President was removed from his position for a variety of reasons and we are working to bring that division to the level expected. There are a couple of "star performers" that I have mentioned in the past, i.e., Dr. Don Large and Dr. Ainsley Carry. Both continue to do well and are a pleasure to work with.

6. Provide a brief summary of goals and objectives for the University for the year ahead as well as longer range.

We will focus on those elements of the strategic plan that have yet to be completed as our overall guidance for the upcoming year. Of all the metrics that measure academic quality in a university our weakest is still graduation rates. We will see increases in the next few years—we are admitting a much stronger student than in the past, we have many programs to support student learning, and we have maintained costs levels below that of our peer institutions.

The second area of improvement that we are still working on is the area of graduate programs. Graduate enrollment is up this past year by five percent, but we still have much progress to make.

In conclusion, I want to say that Susie and I appreciate being at Auburn. It is exciting and rewarding. If you have specific questions, I would be delighted to respond. As you conduct this review, I only ask that my salary not be increased should you be so inclined.

➢ 2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Improve Auburn University’s promotion and tenure process.

- Departments continue to develop specific guidelines for achieving promotion and tenure. Some have been approved, others are in progress.
- In June 2011, the BOT will receive proposed changes to Chapter Three of the Faculty Handbook. These revisions include (1) the recognition of newly established Departmental P&T Guidelines; (2) revised procedures for P&T voting and appeals; and (3) simplified language and clarification.

STRATEGIC PRIORITY 5: COMMITTING TO CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT IN STRENGTHENING OUR MANAGEMENT APPROACHES AND INCREASING OUR EFFICIENCY

➢ 2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Increase opportunities for campus-wide collaboration and external funding as it relates to the Office of Sustainability.

- The Office of Sustainability has developed the Climate Action Plan 1.0 to provide a vehicle for increasing opportunities for ongoing campus-wide collaboration. Initial planning steps have involved 150 participants from administration, faculty, staff, and students, in nine working groups.
- The Sustainability Minor includes instructors or course offerings from nine of the colleges and schools. Approximately 70 students are currently enrolled in the minor; to date 20 students have graduated with the minor in sustainability.
- Collaborating with other campus units, the Office of Sustainability is developing capacities to provide fee-based consulting services to external audiences for sustainability-related training.

➢ 2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Conduct a formal readiness audit in preparation for the submission of Auburn University’s SACS Compliance Certification; identify the focus for the Quality Enhancement Plan.

- A Compliance Readiness Audit Team is currently working to gather evidence that Auburn remains in compliance with all SACS standards and federal requirements.
- A broad-based Quality Enhancement Plan Exploratory Committee – including faculty, learning specialists, staff, students and an alumnus – submitted a “short list” of three feasible topics, from which Auburn’s QEP project will be selected. To gather ideas and build involvement, the committee has conducted focus groups, surveys, and issued a formal call for proposals.
2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Continue to identify and implement areas of collaboration between Auburn and AUM.

- There have been numerous collaborative efforts between Auburn and AUM in the past year. Two efforts of significant impact include:
  - The joint Master’s degree in Cybersystems and Information Security.
  - Establishing a system for transitioning Auburn University deferred students into the Seamless Program.
    - A letter, co-signed by the AUM Provost and the Auburn University Director of University Recruitment, has been sent to all Auburn University deferred applicants who meet the established requirements for admission in this program inviting them to participate in the program.
    - To date, AUM has accepted more than 858 students into the Seamless Admissions program.
    - Although not all students have chosen to participate, both institutions are confident the numbers of students participating will more than double in the 2011-12 year.

2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Establish a draft policy for Board of Trustees review that sets priorities for campus master plan implementation.

- Facilities provided the Capital Projects Program plan and funding requirements to University leadership for presentation to the Board of Trustees in November 2010.
- Process for the Master Plan Update for 2012 is underway and is in the data-gathering phase.

STRATEGIC PRIORITY 6: CONTINUE TO DRAMATICALLY EXPAND THE ENDOWMENT, ANNUAL FUND, AND GIFTS TO THE UNIVERSITY, TO SUPPORT ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE AND INCREASE SCHOLARSHIPS

2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Develop an integrated marketing and communications plan.

- A comprehensive plan and policy to improve communications quality and processes and create stronger relationships among decentralized communicators and the central office has been developed, approved by senior administration, and is receiving input from around campus.
- A new university website is in place, with almost all colleges and schools having moved to a unified new template, and soon able to update information more easily through a content management system managed by IT.

2010-2011 Strategic Goal: Develop plans for one new major income stream for Auburn University.

- The university continues to review its academic and non academic areas for ways to enhance current revenue streams and opportunities for new streams.
- A goal is to have one to three new revenue streams identified in the near future.
