Re: Annual Assessment of the President
Date: August 26, 2014

Board policies base the annual presidential assessment on six areas critical to the life of the institution. We have reviewed your self-assessment and unanimously agree that you continue to perform at an exceptional level in all six categories.

We commend and thank you for another outstanding year of leadership for Auburn and the Auburn family. In addition, as we have in the past, we recognize and appreciate the invaluable role played by Susie. The importance of her contribution to promoting Auburn and its mission cannot be overstated.

Additional information on the six assessment criteria is provided below.

1. Summarize performance in addressing previously established goals and objectives

   Strategic plan: We applaud you and the many others who are responsible for making strides in implementing the strategic plan. The updated five-year plan is aggressive, actionable and measurable, characteristics that many in industry and academia miss when setting strategic priorities. We ask that you express the Board’s appreciation to faculty and staff for their diligence and hard work in maintaining forward momentum, even in the face of sharp reductions in state support.

   State gun law: You highlighted the law as a potential campus issue to be closely monitored. Please continue to keep us apprised as it develops.

   Athletics: Likewise, we ask that you continue to keep us informed on changes in the Athletics Department. Progress, especially internal to the Department, is clearly being made. We’re particularly pleased with the continued emphasis on academic success for student-athletes.

   Student Affairs: The vice president’s position is key to student life on campus. We appreciate your leadership in conducting a timely national search.
2. Highlight particularly significant accomplishments during the assessment period

Accreditation reaffirmation: SACS reaffirmation is a long, deliberate and detailed process, and we know your leadership was key to its successful outcome. Please express our appreciation to Drew Clark.

Medical school: We agree that the Edward Via College of Osteopathic Medicine will be a long-term beneficial partner for Auburn. It's also a positive development for the local community and state. Thanks to you, Tim Boosinger, Michael Goodlett and others for the vision and efforts to make it a reality.

Economic development: GE Aviation's announcement is one more sign that Auburn is well positioned to serve as an engine of economic growth. We encourage you to continue looking for opportunities where Auburn can improve the economic well being of the community and state. Please express our appreciation to John Mason and Chris Roberts.

SEC Network: In just the short time since it went live, the SEC Network has generated much attention and enthusiasm. We are pleased to learn that Jay Jacobs was integral to its launch and that significant revenue is expected. Video is clearly the preferred medium by today's sports fans, and we look forward to seeing what Jay's team will produce. Please let him know of our appreciation.

3. Identify continuing problems that the President is facing and recommend how the Board and the President might work together to address these problems

As noted last year, Trustees saw improved marketing and communications for the university, and we're pleased the trend continues. We look forward to continued success and ask that you keep us updated.

4. Describe three major challenges and three opportunities the university will face in the upcoming year and what role the president will play in them

We agree with your assessment of major challenges facing the university – decreased state support, faculty to student ratio in light of a large freshmen class, and new federal laws impacting higher education. As you see opportunities for Trustees to assist, we ask that you let us know.

The opportunities you listed are each exciting in their own way. We encourage you to maximize each to its fullest potential and ask that you inform the Board if we can assist.

5. Briefly discuss the strengths and overall performance of the senior administrative staff

The Board is pleased to learn of your continued satisfaction with senior administrative staff. Succession planning is a good business practice, and we're pleased it's now part of your evaluation process.
6. Provide a brief summary of goals and objectives for the university for the year ahead as well as longer range.

We support your vision for the following year relative to implementation of the updated strategic plan.

Additional component of annual assessment

Provide recommendations concerning timing of a presidential search and appointment.

Your thoughts on the president’s home are well taken. We will give it serious consideration.

c: AU Board of Trustees
August 18, 2014

TO: Presidential Assessment Committee
FROM: Jay Gogue
SUBJECT: Presidential Self-Assessment 2013-2014

Consistent with Board of Trustee policies, I offer my thoughts in each criterion within the self-assessment policy:

Summarize performance in addressing previously established goals and objectives

This is the first year of our new five-year strategic plan. Based on the review at the end of June 2014, we enjoyed a good first year and reasonable success for the first nine months of the plan. The plan will provide overall guidance and direction for Auburn during the next several years. In my president's report to the Board, I will keep you apprised of significant achievements as the plan develops.

During my Self-Assessment last year, I expressed several specific items of concern, and I want to comment on each one.

1. Appropriate management of the new state gun law: At this point, it has not materialized into a major issue. As you know, the university's weapons policy has been widely promoted, and entrances to campus buildings are visibly marked with reminders. It's an issue we continue to monitor closely.

2. Changes in Athletics were needed: Recommendations by the athletics review committee have been implemented, and most of the key challenges have been addressed. Among other needed changes, the hiring of experienced chief operating and chief marketing officers has filled voids created with the Department. For the most part, new coaching hires are turning out well. Finally, in looking at the criteria a president uses to evaluate Athletics Department leadership, we are doing quite well. However, it's likewise a situation I continue to closely monitor.

3. New Vice President for Student Affairs: Bobby Woodard started in early August after a national search.
Highlight particularly significant accomplishments during the assessment period

While these accomplishments are the work of many, I want to mention several and compliment a number of staff members:

1. We received full reaffirmation from our regional accrediting body. Please note that it is only significant when you do not receive a positive review, and the consequences on enrollment, research funding and prestige can be quite severe! While a team of campus leaders was critical to this work, Drew Clark deserves much credit. I appreciate members of the Board who were part of the review process.

2. The new Edward Via College of Osteopathic Medicine has met or exceeded all criteria in its accreditation process. While this is a private institution and not part of Auburn, we see them as a valuable long-term partner. Special credit goes to Provost Tim Boosinger and Dr. Michael Goodlett from Auburn Athletics.

3. In economic development, the recent announcement from GE Aviation to locate additive manufacturing in Auburn is most significant. While the community benefits from more high-paying jobs, the university benefits through workforce training programs and research and development in one of the most innovative technology fields of our generation. Many state and local elected officials along with Vice President for Research and Economic Development John Mason and Engineering Dean Chris Roberts made this happen.

4. Auburn Athletics played a major role in the successful launch of the SEC Network/ESPN Channel. We anticipate significant new revenue over time. Athletics Director Jay Jacobs was key in the array of operational/scheduling issues between ESPN and the SEC. Jay has also developed a top-notch video team that will project Auburn into areas we haven't experienced previously.

Identify continuing problems the President is facing and recommend how the Board and President might work together to address the problems

The major weakness that I mentioned last year had to do with marketing of the University and Athletics. We have made structural changes internally. We have added several new professionals to our staff and we are using external professional services (Hawthorn Group/John Ashcroft.) Brian Keeter deserves much of the credit to date, and we will continue monitoring these changes to ensure success.

Describe three major challenges and three opportunities the University will face in the upcoming year and what role the President will play in addressing them

Challenges:

1. We still have significant state funding issues relative to higher education. While we did receive an increase in state appropriations of several million dollars, we are still almost $100 million less annually compared to 2007. The Education Trust Fund grew only by one percent during the past year, so minimal increases are expected in the 2014-2015 budget year that begins October 2014. Our local legislators do an excellent job for Auburn, but the statewide tax base continues to be quite limited.

2. This fall we have about 600 more freshmen than anticipated. The challenge is keeping our faculty to student ratio consistent, which means adding 30 to 40 new sections in English, math, chemistry, etc. We will be challenged to provide the number of courses needed at the time desired by students.

3. Several new federal laws will create challenges.

   a. Sexual Assault – Universities are not well equipped to resolve allegations of criminal offenses.
   b. Veterans Tuition – The new bill requires in-state tuition for veterans, their spouses and dependents.

Opportunities:

Cyber and cyber security issues are growing in national prominence, and we continue developing skills in this area to make Auburn a national leader. The opportunity exists to match Auburn expertise with the needs of business, industry and government.

The new SEC/ESPN channel is anticipated to generate an unprecedented increase in support for Auburn Athletics. This development provides an opportunity to rethink existing budgeting and investment strategies.

Economic development opportunities for Auburn are growing, not just in Lee County but also statewide. Collaboration among academia, industry and government is key, and Auburn will continue to proactively engage in efforts to grow the Alabama economy.

Briefly discuss the strengths and overall performance of the senior administrative staff

Each direct report was evaluated in June. In addition to our normal annual review, we focused on succession planning. The basic discussion centered on the question of who could best do your job on an interim and a permanent basis. We had good, honest discussion, and I feel good about where we are currently. I appreciate the Board suggesting the importance of this practice.

Provide a brief summary of goals and objectives for the University for the year ahead as well as longer range

The Strategic Plan defines our institutional goals and will be reviewed periodically with the Board.

Provide recommendations concerning timing of a presidential search and appointment
There is no change from previous communications on this topic. During the current year, I believe it may be prudent to evaluate the presidential residence. The house is almost 80 years old with plumbing and electrical issues occurring more frequently. As we approach the end of my contract, you might consider moving us out and doing the necessary upgrades for your new president. Most new presidents will not want to see any funds spent on the residence since this is always controversial. In conclusion, Susie and I are enjoying our roles at Auburn and really appreciate the support of the Trustees and university.
