Camp War Eagle

Camp War Eagle is Auburn's award-winning freshman orientation program. Incoming freshmen and their parents or guests come to Auburn for a two-day, one-night intensive training session on "Life as an Auburn Tiger." You'll learn about academic programs and services, campus life, and Auburn traditions. You will also register for your classes during Camp War Eagle. Best of all, Camp War Eagle counselors are current Auburn students and can prepare you for success as a new student. Freshmen accepted for Spring Term will attend SOS orientation in the Fall.

Your orientation materials will be mailed in March. Parents will attend a program designed just for them, and they'll have the opportunity to meet with various offices on campus.

You can review and download the latest version of the Auburn University Bulletin, our course catalog, at auburn.edu/bulletin.

*The deposit is applied to tuition and any orientation fees. See enclosed deposit form for details.

Financial Aid & Scholarships

More than 60% of Auburn students receive some type of financial assistance. Millions of dollars are awarded each year in financial aid and scholarships. The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is available online on January 1. The results of your FAFSA and other requirements, if necessary, must be received by Auburn by April 1 to receive maximum federal aid consideration. The FAFSA determines your eligibility for grants, loans, and work-study programs, which are need-based.

Auburn also provides a wide variety of scholarships to eligible students. Priority consideration is given to admission applications postmarked by December 1. Your application for admission to Auburn also serves as your application for Freshman and General Scholarship consideration. The results of your FAFSA must be received by Auburn by March 1 to receive consideration for need-based General and Departmental Scholarships. Please contact the college or school in which you plan to major for Departmental Scholarship consideration. Visit auburn.edu/scholarship for more info on scholarships.
