5. LOWDER AND SHELBY TECHNOLOGY CENTER

The Lowder Business Building is home of the Raymond J. Harbert College of Business. There are 12 professional concentrations for bachelor- degreed programs in 12 departments, including Aviation Management, Family Business and Entrepreneurship, and Accountancy. Next door, the Shelby Technology Center is one of several buildings in the Samuel Ginn College of Engineering. There are 13 different degree opportunities in engineering, including the nation's first Wireless Engineering Program. The college has educated four of Auburn's six astronauts and three directors of the Kennedy Space Center.

6. FOY & CATE

Foy Hall, named for a beloved former dean of men, James E. Foy, contains food court-style dining. Freshman Year Experience, Study Abroad, and International Education all have their offices in Foy. Opposite Foy Hall is Katharine Cooper Cater Hall. The university's Honors College and Academic Support Services operate from Cater Hall. Hey Day, a favorite Auburn tradition held annually on Cater Lawn, is run by the SGA and is dedicated to promoting the friendly campus atmosphere Auburn is famously known for.

7. SAMFORD HALL

Samford Hall is the postcard picture of Auburn's campus. Named after former Alabama Governor William J. Samford, the building is the successor to Old Main, which burned down in 1887. Samford is home to the President's Office. The Samford clock tower chimes every 15 minutes, and at noon, plays the fight song for all to hear. Other historical buildings located near Samford Hall include Langdon Hall and Hargis Hall. In front of Langdon you will see the University Seal, on which is written: "Research, Instruction, Extension; for the advancement of science and arts." These are the overarching principles to which Auburn was founded as Alabama's land-grant institution.

8. MARY MARTIN HALL

Mary Martin Hall was Auburn University's first library. It now houses Student Financial Services, Career Center, and Admissions Processing. The Career Center holds career and internship fairs yearly and conducts mock interviews and personality testing to help students find their career path. Across Thach Avenue is Centennial Gardens, built in 1956 to celebrate the first 100 years of the university. This is actually the original site of the first football field. Beyond Centennial Gardens, you see Ross Hall, which serves as the home to the departments of Mechanical Engineering and Chemical Engineering.

9. RALPH BROWN DRAUGHON LIBRARY

Ralph Brown Draughon Library is a 200,000-square-foot building with more than 3 million volumes. RBD contains resources for students to utilize for coursework including the Digital Resource Lab and Miller Writing Center. Several student support services are located here, including Study Partners – a student tutoring service. Supplemental Instruction, a regularly scheduled, collaborative, peer-directed review session, lead by SI leaders who attend and take notes in these classes, meets in the library. There is also a full-service coffee vendor in the lobby to help students stay awake during late-night study sessions.

Across College St. from the library is The Cambridge, a residence hall with rooms configured for double-occupancy and a dining facility on the first floor.

The College of Human Sciences is just to the right of the Library in Spidle Hall. This college is home to degrees in Hotel and Restaurant Management, Human development and Family Studies as well as Interior Design and offers an international minor degree at Auburn's permanent international campus just outside of Rome, Italy.

10. THE QUAD CENTER

This is the center of the Upper Quad Residence Halls. Auburn has five residential neighborhoods: The Quad, The Hill, South Donahue, The Village, and The Cambridge. The Quad is split into two areas - four halls in the upper quad and six in the lower quad. The Quad residences are designed as suite style (two double-occupancy rooms connected by a bathroom). All housing areas are equipped with air-conditioning and heating units. Basic cable and wireless Internet connection are included along with other utilities.

11. SCIENCE CENTER CONCOURSE

(Old Roosevelt Drive)

This area is informally known as the science center concourse because of its proximity to the College of Sciences and Mathematics. The large building is the Science Center Laboratories, and the two smaller buildings to the right are the Science Center Auditorium and the Science Center Classrooms. These three buildings were completed in 2005. The auditorium seats 300, however in the classroom building, rooms seat 100 or less. Beyond the Science Center and up the hill, you will find Dudley Hall – home to the College of Architecture, Design and Construction. This nationally ranked college includes popular majors such as Architecture, Building Science, Graphic Design, and Landscape Architecture.

12. COMER HALL

Comer Hall is home to the College of Agriculture, housing the college's main administrative offices as well as the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology. The College of Agriculture offers 11 majors and 10 minors leading to careers in a broad variety of research, business, technology, and production fields.

Many pre-professional students choose the College of Agriculture's Pre-Vet/Pre-Professional track that allows students to satisfy academic requirements for application to Auburn's College of Veterinary Medicine. The College of Veterinary Medicine is accredited by the American Veterinary Medical Association Council of Education.

13. THE HILL

The Hill Residence Halls house men and women in 12 residence halls. Hill rooms are suite-style rooms consisting of two double-occupancy rooms connected by a bathroom. Terrell Dining Hall is centrally located on the Hill with four dining facilities. The Hill is the housing area closest to the Medical Clinic, which is a full-service primary-care clinic that serves Auburn students, faculty, and staff as well as the community. Physicians, nurse practitioners, and a full nursing staff are on hand to staff a full lab, x-ray facilities, an optical clinic, and all medical services. The School of Forestry and Wildlife Sciences is located just beyond the Hill. The school manages and maintains a Forest Ecology Preserve and Nature Center. The President's Home is also located near the Hill and was built in 1938.

On Donahue Drive at the corner of West Samford is the South Donahue Residence Hall, which houses both athletes and undergraduates. The rooms are configured in "super suites" consisting of four single bedrooms, two bathrooms and a common living and dining area. The Wellness Kitchen across the street is a healthy eatery with options for gluten-free and allergy-free preparation stations.

14. THE VILLAGE

The Village housing area was completed in 2009 and consists of eight residence halls set up as super-suites with four private bedrooms, two shared bathrooms, and a common living/dining area. Auburn's 17 social sororities are housed in three of the buildings and a fourth building houses members of the Honors College. The remaining four buildings are coed housing for both freshmen and upperclassmen.

The Village is located near the Auburn Arena, which opened prior to the 2010-11 basketball season and has the capacity for 9,600 fans. The Auburn University Recreation and Wellness Center is located directly across from the Arena. It provides more than 240,000 square feet of recreational space for Auburn students, faculty, and staff. Amenities include: an indoor walking/running track, six regulation-size basketball courts, an outdoor leisure pool, a rock climbing wall, racquetball courts, sand volleyball courts, and much more. The proximity of the center creates a direct link to the Village Housing and the existing Intramural Fields.

2. STUDENT CENTER

A gathering place for Auburn students, the student center was completed in 2008. Auburn has more than 400 student organizations; many of their offices are housed here, as well as the student affairs personnel. There are seven dining options including a full service Starbucks. The Foy Information Desk, just inside the entrance to the Student Center, was featured in Oprah's O Magazine and on the Today Show as one of the top ten phone numbers to have in your cell phone. Beyond the Student Center is Jordan-Hare Stadium, which seats 87,451 and makes Auburn the 5th largest city in Alabama on game days. On the west side of Jordan-Hare, you will find The Village Residence Halls, Westview Dining, the Recreation and Wellness Center, and the Auburn Arena, home to Tiger basketball.

3. HALEY CENTER

Haley Center is home to the College of Education as well as classrooms for many of Auburn's freshman core classes. Classrooms are located on the first two floors while the tallest part of the building serves as faculty offices. Professors hold scheduled office hours on a weekly basis to meet with students. The College of Education has 23 bachelor's degree options. The pedestrian area in front of Haley is commonly referred to as "the Concourse." Each fall, campus organizations will gather here to promote their group. O-Days, short for Organization Days, are a great way to see what all Auburn has to offer for student involvement. The University Bookstore is located on the first floor of Haley Center, where you should stop to pick up an Auburn souvenir.

4. CORNER OF TIGER CONCOURSE & THACH CONCOURSE

Across from Haley Center, you will see two buildings: Thach and Tichenor Halls. These are home to the College of Liberal Arts which offers undergraduate degrees in 26 fields of study and minors in 23 areas, as well as graduate-level programs. To the left of Thach is Walker Hall, home to the Harrison School of Pharmacy, a four-year professional program. Beyond that is Miller Hall, home to the School of Nursing and Lowder Business Building, home to the Harbert College of Business. Next to Lowder is the Shelby Technology Center, one of several buildings in the Samuel Ginn College of Engineering.
