

Homework Absence Policy for MATH 7500

Unless otherwise stated, weekly homework assignments are due on Monday, next week. Students turning the assignments in early, at the end of the week on Friday (or Saturday if sent electronically) may have a chance of earning additional credit by presenting their work in class. For example, homework assigned on Monday, September 14, is due on Monday, September 21, with an early option on Friday, September 18 (or Saturday, September 19, if sent electronically with MATH7500 in the subject line).

Students absent from class or with another valid excuse have another option: turn in the alternate assignment sent electronically on request or posted. The due date for this assignment is about a week after the student returns to class. The alternate assignments may be graded with significant delay.