JOB SUMMARY

Provides executive leadership and strategic direction for the University's Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) implementation and transformation initiatives. Oversees cross-functional planning, governance, budget management, vendor partnerships, organizational readiness, and business process redesign to ensure successful delivery of program objectives while advancing operational excellence and supporting Auburn University's long-term strategic goals.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Provides overall leadership and strategic direction for the enterprise implementation program, ensuring alignment with institutional goals and maintaining Auburn University's ownership of project decisions, priorities, and outcomes.
- Directs and coordinates cross-functional project teams, including functional, technical, data, change management, and readiness resources, to ensure successful execution of project objectives, deliverables, and timelines.
- Oversees program governance, decision-making, risk management, issue resolution, and organizational readiness efforts, ensuring appropriate escalation, communication, documentation, and implementation of key decisions.
- Partners with executive sponsors, project leadership, the project management office, and external implementation partners to monitor program performance, resource allocation, budget, quality, dependencies, and overall project health.
- Leads business process transformation initiatives by promoting adoption of leading practices, identifying opportunities for operational improvement, and ensuring solutions support long-term institutional needs rather than replicating legacy processes.
- Provides executive-level reporting and recommendations regarding project status, budget, readiness, risks, and deployment decisions, ensuring institutional impacts and operational considerations are fully evaluated prior to implementation.
- Manages vendor and systems integrator relationships, holding internal and external stakeholders accountable for commitments, deliverables, and performance expectations.

The responsibilities listed above show the typical duties for jobs in this classification. Actual tasks may differ depending on the department's needs. Other similar duties may be assigned with discretion of the supervisor. Not every duty will apply to every position, and the amount of time spent on each task can change based on department needs.
