JOB FAMILY AND FUNCTION

Job Family:	Marketing, Communications, & Multimedia
Job Function:	Communications Strategy

JOB SUMMARY

Reporting to the Executive Director of the Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Art, the Director of Communications and External Relations leads the communications and external relations unit of the museum. Expanding the impact of art and ensuring positive impacts on audiences and other stakeholders, the Director manages exceptional and innovative communications, marketing, and relationships regarding the university museum and its 3000+ collection objects, exhibitions, and other programs and initiatives, including the Museum Shop and the Museum Café.

Serves as a key member of the museum's senior leadership team, collaborating on the execution of high-level administrative and budgetary matters, the establishment of policies and procedures, and long-range planning for exhibitions, engagement, and development, all to foster meaningful and transformative experiences for audiences at an institution that celebrates art, film, and cultural discourse. Responsible for developing and implementing strategy in execution of all communications and media relations, building relationships with broad and diverse audiences and other stakeholders to communicate and implement the Museum's vision of a highly creative, outward-facing, visitor-centered institution that welcomes everyone to explore, experience, and engage with the visual arts in service to the university, the region and the nation.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Establishes the guiding principles of communications and external relations of the museum, providing overall management, direction, and oversight of the comprehensive public relations and marketing programs to actively engage new, diverse, and broad audiences across the region, state, and nation. Collaborates in all areas of development, curatorial, and education, engagement, and learning to grow support and stakeholder engagement through directing, managing, and supporting programmatic offerings, events, and visitation, all to ensure seamless, thoughtful and fully integrated scheduling, messaging, and engagement. Initiates, administers, and oversees special communication and marketing projects.
- Develops and implements strategy, with the senior leadership team, that promotes the museum and its opportunities and develops and sustains relationships with key external partners. Conceptualizes, plans, develops, implements, and manages three-year equitable and accessible communications and engagement plans that amplify the museum's brand and increases involvement, investments and influence.
- Leads, administers, and manages the museum's Communications and External Relations unit, including Visitor Services, Special Events, Art Design, and Multi-media staffs, inspiring and nourishing capacity and a culture of innovation, creative learning, risk-taking, transparency, experimentation, open communication, and accountability. Assists in updating and interfacing with the Advisory Board as requested. Builds and maintains a network of professional relationships with other professional colleagues locally, nationally, and globally; and represents the museum at local, regional, national, and international professional, academic, and social arts, communications, and external relations forums.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Full supervisory responsibility for a strategically-focused staff is a major responsibility and includes recruiting, training, evaluating, and making or recommending pay, promotion, or other employment decisions. Keeps department staff informed with routine meetings and open communications.
- Develops and oversees the unit's annual budget and schedules, particularly tracking expenditures to ensure adherence to set goals, all in close collaboration with museum colleagues. Assesses unit functions, priorities, and processes to ensure efficiencies, excellence, and alignment with museum best practices and AAM accreditation standards. Demonstrates and requires adherence to the highest ethical standards.
- Oversees all media and public relations of the museum, serving as the initial point of contact for media requests (print, social, electronic) and working closely with the University's Office of Communications and Marketing and Office of Advancement. Identifies and develops key messages and copy points, and ensures consistency of messages across media, events, programs, and platforms. As necessary, generates and/or distributes media releases, public service announcements and feature stories. Cultivates relationships with press, including arranging for media representatives to attend museum events and coordinating interviews with designated staff. Ensures communication products are disseminated to the widest possible audiences, are of the highest quality and contain approved and appropriate content.
- Manages and directs effective external relations and visitor-centric programs to grow and steward stakeholders, overseeing the Visitors Services sub-unit, including the Museum Store and Café, and their staffs, students and volunteers, advocating for needs of visitors within exhibition environments and public spaces. In collaboration with colleagues, develops, oversees and manages flawless, strategic, and engaging events, including budgeting and scheduling ensuring excellent customer service is carefully coordinated with museum operations and stewardship responsibilities. As needed, conducts and/or collaborates on research and visitor studies, especially ensuring, as appropriate, the incorporation of technology into the visitor experience. All requires the development of policies and procedures consistent with the care of the collection, facility use and the safety of staff and visitors, branding and communications, stakeholder engagement, and earned income revenue streams.
- Manages and directs a compelling and relevant social media and digital/electronic program. Conceptualizes inventive online curatorial content and interpretive tools for an accurate and up-to-date museum website, as well as other digital platforms and formats, embracing social media, digital, and technology opportunities such as crowd sourcing, augmented reality, and virtual art experiences. Coordinates recording, filming, and streaming selected programs for distribution via website and social media that enhance marketing, branding, and promotional activities to broaden the museum's reach and increase stakeholder engagement.
- Oversees all videography and photography operations and resources related to communications and external relations to ensure total integration of museum engagement, visitor support, and development. Manages, supervises, creates, produces, casts, writes scripts and/or distributes high-end digital motion graphics, live/pre-recorded videos, commercials, and all other photography/video productions. As necessary, edits, produces, casts, and/or makes copies available for uplinks, videos, short story video packages, and other production purposes. Advises on the selection and/or purchase of equipment. Manages, analyzes, plans, coordinates and delivers videography and photography outreach to ensure efficiency, effectiveness and quality production and distribution of materials.
- Manages and directs all graphic production and advertising pieces, including the production and costs of engaging printed and web materials including but not limited to media kits, exhibition catalogues, advertisements, brochures, posters, banners, development materials and any other collateral for promotion and to expand awareness of partnerships, programs, and research. Utilizing market research and analysis, and promotion management, evaluates the distribution and effectiveness of the publication program and evolve as needed. Develops and maintains relationships with various publication outlets. Performs other related duties as assigned by Director.
- Performs other related duties as assigned by Director.
