JOB SUMMARY

Under limited supervision, the Counselor III, Financial Aid and Scholarships, provides both front-line general support and comprehensive and individualized advising to students and families on financial aid and scholarship opportunities and processes, and leads outreach by representing the office at orientations, recruitment events, and financial aid workshops. This position also delivers excellent customer service, ensuring accurate information and maintaining documentation in compliance with national, state, and university policies, while also serving as a resource to junior staff.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Independently interprets and applies federal, state, and institutional policies to counsel students on aid eligibility, verification, and satisfactory academic progress requirements, while supporting students in resolving complex issues by evaluating documentation and making independent decisions within established guidelines. Assists other staff by providing guidance, sharing expertise, and supporting their development in navigating policy and procedural complexities.
- Ensures the accurate documentation of student interactions in adherence to FERPA, HEA, CFR and Privacy Act regulations and internal policies.
- Serves as a key resource within the team, providing advanced-level support regarding financial aid and scholarship opportunities, application processes, eligibility requirements, award adjustments, renewal criteria, educational costs, and funding options to students and families via in-person, phone, and virtual interactions.
- Provides direct, scheduled advising to students and families on financial aid and scholarship opportunities, application processes, eligibility requirements, award adjustments, renewal criteria, educational costs, and funding options. Ensures awareness of the various financial aid sources during counseling sessions by providing individualized information and resolving more complex inquiries.
- Serves as an active member of financial aid and scholarship-related committees, including scholarship selection, satisfactory academic progress (SAP) appeals review, and professional judgment reviews. Exercises independent discretion in determining student eligibility and appeal outcomes based on regulatory guidance and professional judgment.
- Analyzes service trends and collaborates with leadership to enhance communication strategies, optimize resource allocation, and develop policies and procedures that improve the efficiency and quality of services provided.
- Represents the office at orientations, recruitment events, financial aid workshops, and high school presentations by delivering presentations to prospective and current students, parents, families, and
